

AY2025 Endowed Courses

1. Overview

Endowed courses are funded by donations from a sponsoring company, which cover the expenses associated with offering the course. Enrollment procedures and credits are the same as those for other courses in the corresponding subject category (refer to the department's course list).

The following endowed courses are provided by the Suenobu Foundation, a public interest incorporated foundation established to support foreign and comparative law research and education. These courses are identical in content to regular university lectures. The establishment of this endowed chair has enabled the university to provide many law courses in English. Students attending these lectures are expected to take advantage of this favorable environment and actively participate in the lectures.
